⚠ Important Consumer Alerts & Scams

While CBD itself is a researched compound, the "Forest Mountain Farms" brand has been flagged by the Better Business Bureau (BBB) and other consumer watchdogs for several red flags:

1. Fake Endorsements: Beware of ads featuring celebrities like Tiger Woods or the cast of Shark Tank. These are confirmed "deepfake" or unauthorized uses of their likeness; these celebrities have no affiliation with this brand.
2. Hidden Charges: Many users have reported being lured in by a "free trial" or a low price (e.g., $39), only to find their credit cards charged for hundreds of dollars in "subscription" fees shortly after.
3. Shipping Issues: Common complaints include products never arriving or being significantly different from what was advertised on the website.

Should You Buy Them?

If you are looking for high-quality CBD, it is safer to stick to established brands that provide a Certificate of Analysis (COA) from a third-party lab. This document proves the product actually contains the CBD it claims and is free of heavy metals or pesticides.

How to Spot a Legitimate CBD Product:

- Third-Party Lab Results: Available via a QR code on the bottle.
- U.S. Sourced Hemp: Look for "Organic" or "Made in the USA" labels.
- Transparent Pricing: Avoid "free trials" that require credit card info for shipping.
